Application & Admission

Dual study

- ▶ The combination of working and studying at the same time. This involves theoretical training in Universities, Academies or Professionals Schools and practical training in different business fields. Simply put, it's like gaining professional work experience during your studies.
- ▶ You earn while you learn

One fascinating thing about dual studies is that, you start earning as soon as you are admitted. The organization with which you sign a contract with will give you monthly allowances, while taking care of your administration fees.

Elizaveta K.

United Kingdom, Computer Science student, Bachelor Degree

University of the People is amazing because it lets me pursue my dream of working in computer science alongside my demanding full-time job.

Although it is difficult to balance the two the flexibility of the online degree lets me do my studies in my free time. Doing the course full-time is very demanding but I want to finish it as soon as possible!

Finland

Tuition Free Universities in Finland

According to studyinfinland.fi:

There are currently no tuition fees charged in Finland, regardless of the level of studies and the nationality of the student however tuition fees for non-EU/EEA students will be introduced from autumn 2017 onwards for English-taught Bachelor's or Master's programmes. Doctoral level studies will remain free of tuition fees.

Updates concerning the forthcoming non-EU tuition fees and related new scholarships options can be found at www.studyinfinland.fi/tuitionfees2017.

Remember that even when there are no tuition fees, you still need to plan your finances – you are expected to independently cover all your everyday living expenses during your studies in Finland.

At the moment, scholarships are mainly available only for Doctoral level studies and research.

Cost of Studying in Finland: Estimated living expenses of a single student in Finland average around 500-800 Euros per month.

If you are a citizen of a least developed country, you may be exempted to pay tuition fees at public universities in Austria and only need to pay the Student Union membership fee and insurance.

- ▶ Cost of Studying in Austria: The cost of living for students in Austria is approximately 800 Euros per month which covers accommodation, food, and personal expenses.

Norway

Tuition Free Universities in Norway

According to Studyinnorway.no:

Norwegian state universities and university colleges as a rule do not charge tuition fees to all students including international students. This applies to all levels, including undergraduate studies, Masters programmes and Ph.D. programmes. Note that some state universities and university colleges may have tuition fees for a few specialized programmes which are typically at the Masters level. Students will also need to pay a semester fee of NOK 300-600 each semester.

Most private institutions have tuition fees for all their programmes and courses. But the fees are usually significantly lower than those of comparable studies in most other countries. Also, foreign students don't pay higher tuition fees than Norwegian students.

Cost of Studying in Norway: You should take into consideration that living expenses in Norway are higher than in many other countries. Living expenses would amount to NOK 90,000-100,000 per year.
